• Preparation before broadcast

This is the second times I do the FHJH News. The category we were responsible for was campus news. We told the schoolmates that although the school celebration was cancelled due to the pandemic, there were still many exhibitions they could visit. This experience taught me how to write a good news article. The structure of a news article is inverted pyramid. So we need to write main points at the beginning called Lead, and write less essential details at the end called Ending. In order to broadcast the news smoothly, we integrated our manuscript, foreground and background powerpoint before broadcast.

• When broadcasting

This time I took a role as a director. Before the official broadcast, we had 40 minutes to prepare at the recording studio. So we did the rehearsals twice. But many problems occurred in the process. For example, the microphone had no sound, and video became a photo. After solving the problems in panic, we started the official live broadcast. Although some errors still occurred, the broadcast was successfully completed.

One of the director's tasks is to control what the audience sees.

• What did I learn?

The first thing I learned is how important it is to prepare in advance. If you can do something advance, don't wait until the end, or you will end up doing nothing due to panic. Just like this time, we should get everything ready before going to the recording studio, but we didn't double check the powerpoint and the video, so we made unnecessary mistakes.

The second thing I learned is how to control the entire video scene. Because I was the director, I needed to ensure that the broadcast was carried out smoothly. In the process, I found it difficult to do many things at the same time. So I find that I have to organize my thoughts while I am free to complete my work smoothly when I am busy.
